I've been coming to this practice for over 12 years. I've had teeth cleaning and I've had some teeth whitening. X rays. All of my dental needs I have come here. I love coming to this practice because there's no fear. I get to come and see somebody that I know that I consider a friend. The office is always professional.

Every member of the team is there to help. And I really appreciate that, especially when you're on a time schedule.

I would describe Dr. Huddleston as a friend.

[In the reception area of the practice, a patient approaches the front desk where a staff member greets her with a smile]

I was doing a project that was to help kids in school and Darren heard about it and immediately sent down a bucket of toothbrushes and said, "Hey, please use these however you can".

Right then I knew that I like this guy because he was he was community concerned. He puts his money where his mouth is, and that's important to me.

[A closer shot shows Dr. Huddleston still engaged in a conversation at the conference table]

[We see an aerial shot of the dental practice building with a brown slanted roof and brick siding. In the background we see a series of tall hills]

[We pan across the sign situated in front of the practice. It reads "The Center for Esthetic Dentistry, Darren S. Huddleston, DMD, PC, General Dentistry"]

The visit that stands out the most was calling Darren's personal number going,

"I have a tooth - I just lost a tooth and I have to be to work in 2 hours". And he met me down here with his assistant. And yes, I was on time for work and he fixed it.

[Dr. Huddleston holds a mold of a dental teeth, speaking to a member of his team as he points to a section of the mold with a pencil]

And that's a true friend. If someone asked me if they should come to this practice, I would say, wholeheartedly. Absolutely.

[One last aerial shot pulling away from the practice building transitions us to a closing graphic]
